Wind Turns Back Trans-Pacific Plane

VANCOUVER (CP)-A Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-6B with 56 persons aboard was turned back to Vancouver Saturday while almost halfway on an 11-hour flight to Honolulu.

The plane was due to land here at 12.30 a.m. today.

The plane, the Empress of Toronto, was recalled because of dangerously high winds over the Pacific. It left here at 2.30 p.m.

There were 51 passengers and a crew of five on board. First reports indicated there were no injuries or damage to the plane.

ALLABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SMALL boys are supposed to be greedy, but I remember that during part of my boynood my mother and father used up a great deal of energy trying to induce me to eat anything at all.

A meal was a battle of wills between myself and my parents. They tried threats, promises and appeals to my better nature, in an effort to charm some nourishment down my gullet. I fought a delaying action, fidgeting with the food until it was cold and gluey. cold and gluey.

I don't remember why I didn't want food, but I didn't. My stomach rejected it. That phase lasted two or three years. Certainly it is over now. At the dinner-table in childhood I was often a non-starter; nearly always a non-finisher. Now I am an oddson favorite to finish first by several lengths of the esophagus, and sit looking around with a silly grin.

I eat a lot, and I eat fast, but I don't get any bigger. (Never mind sending any worm pills, thanks.)

worm pills, (hanks.)

Any time I don't feel like food, I know something is wrong. This is one of those rare occasions. A germperhaps an immigrant from the Orient—has attacked me and taken away all wish for food.

This feeling of mild invalidism—light head, heavy stomach—takes me vividily back to childhood, as though some of the memory circuits were routed through the viscera.

Good Enough to Eat

convalescent, in the white bed with gold-colored knobs at the corners; and looking through magazines like the Saturday Evening Post, in which there were large bright advertisements for Camp-bell's Soups and someone else's spaghetti and someone good enough to eat. And as I saw those rich, steaming howls of soup and dishes piled bowls of soup and dishes piled with many-colored vegetables, I began to feel hungry. I showed my mother one of the pictures and asked her to bring me something like that. Delighted at this unusual interest in food, she did her best to produce a reasonable facetimile.

I remember being sick, then that if I didn't feel hungry, I would thumb through a mag-azine and come to the table with a raging appetite.

It was in times of iliness, if I remember, that I began to take an interest in Iree samples. Almost every page of a popular magazine—when I was five, six and seven years old—had a coupon which the resder was invited to send to the manufacturer and obtain a free trial package, tube or bottle of some product.

The free sample packages product.

The free sample packages of health beverages and breakfast cereals generally contained a list of the minerals, proteins, vitamins and other lifte-giving ingredients inside. These were catalogued in such impressive terms that I began to feel healthy and well-nourished merely as and well-nourished merely a result of reading them.

Spiritual Nourishment

To this day I am a keen reader of contents tables, and I derive spiritual nourishment from their rich-sounding words.

Then there were samples to be obtained; ointments, mouthwashes, toothpastes.

Some of them required 10 cents in stamps or coin. I had an argument with my parents to get backing for these ventures. Sometimes they financed me. At other times they refused.

Free samples became a hobby: From this distance I am not sure of my motives in sending for them. I think I pictured myself as bringing useful goods in, contributing to the welfare of the house. If I couldn't be a breadwinner, I would be a breadwinner. I would be a bree sample winner. The "something for nothing" idea had taken an early grip on me.

And these packages seemed to provide a link between the lonely, everyday world of a boy in the country and the big smoking factories where—by some mysterious process—goods were made. The idea of machines and factories fascinated me. In a sense, these free samples were a small tangible link with a world of turning wheels and smoke stacks.

Ominous Words

Some of the coupons were Some of the coupons were marked with those deadily words: "Offer good in the United States only." But plenty of samples were obtainable in Canada; and every day I looked forward to the thrill of some funny-

The Church and Unemployment

WITHOUT prejudice to his inherent virtues one doubts that any labor official is qualified to say what Christ might do if He came back to earth. That He would find much to displease him seems certain. He might even find some labor union practices which did not meet His concept of social behavior or regard for one's fellow man. Nor is it a layman's right to arrogate to himself whom among His disciples He would disown.

If the ideals of human service are to be contrasted the church and its ordained

If the ideals of human service are to be contrasted the church and its ordained leaders need take second place to no other agency. The function of the clergy however is spiritual; that is its main mission. It is not a secular order and its primary purpose is above and beyond the norm of ordinary endeavor. This does not preclude its interest in social matters and there is ample proof, for anyone who cares impartially to look, of the Christian application of material help to those in distress. Were it not for the concepts followed by His disciples in fact the social adjustments represented in the evolution

To accuse the clergy therefore, or the To accuse the clergy therefore, or the church, of being indifferent to the current unemployment situation is distinctly to speak out of turn. The church could not escape involvement, for unemployment impinges on its affairs and the quiet good work of many a clergyman and his charges is directed to amelioration of the hardships which unemployment brings. If any labor official is unaware of this then he has no warrant for attacking the church; if he is aware of it he has even less warrant.

church; if he is aware of it he has even less warrant.

It is scarcely the prerogative of labor to crack a whip and expect the clergy to come running. If the former does its work as faithfully and in as Christian a spirit as the latter then all might be well. Certainly this would then obviate the presumption of prejudging the actions of Christ were He to come back into human midst.

A Lesson in Bad Will

BECAUSE it has begun to lose money on its two-year-old line connecting Terrace and Kitimat, Canadian National the Board of Transport Commissioners for permission to curtail or discontinue passenger service. This may seem reason-able enough in present circumstances.

passenger service. This may seem reasonable enough in present circumstances, but when past history is recalled it becomes hard to feel much sympathy for CNR.

From the beginning of operation CNR did little to create goodwill. It had a monopoly, and from what the company did with it one gained the impression that quality of service was regarded as of little or no importance, since there wasn't any competition to bother about. When trains began running about two years ago there began running about two years ago there was no other way into or out of Kitimat by land. The 43 miles of new track became the sole link between the Terrace airport and the aluminum city.

This made a nice set-up for any trans-portation concern, but it was known that it couldn't last, for a highway was to be built parallel to the railway. Here was built parallel to the railway. Here was an opportunity for a transport company, knowing that it would have to meet competition before long, to build up good public relations. Instead CNR with astonishing lack of foresight appeared to have raided its junkyards for passenger rolling stock, and opened a new line into a new city of unequalled possibilities with decrepit old coaches that might belong in the centennial museum train if they weren't so disreputable. Those cars had to be seen and their discomforts endured weren't so disreputable. Those cars had to be seen and their discomforts endured for them to be believed as operational equipment of a 20th century railroad.

Now the highway is open; and even though the road hasn't yet been paved the rail passenger service has begun to lose money. Anyone with half an eye could have seen that coming. To deserve a monopoly an operator has to give service, and Kitimat people apparently haven't forgotten the kind of service they were given initially.

Putting It in Writing

CITY of Victoria voters will find the library bylaw on their list of ballots to be marked this week. In essence, the bylaw keeps faith with the surrounding municipalities more generously than they have always responded. Victoria will have always responded. Victoria will retain the ownership of the recently con-structed new edifice, but is now offering direct representation with voting rights in the direction and management of the library to the participating outside municipalities.

It was this point, a share in policy decision, which has caused much friction in the past. Subject to the expected assent of its electors, the City is putting it in writing now. A three-fifths majority of votes in favor of the bylaw is required to pass it. The same bylaw must be put in the other participating areas during 1958, for the completion of the public approval sought on the measure. Passage of the bylaw will necessitate routine changes in two provincial statutes, and that has been requested.

Not actually in the bylaw, but the City's stated intention from the start is the approval to be given by this means to the draft agreements between Victoria and its neighbors using the library service during the next 13 years, until the new library debt is paid off. In effect, if the electors say so, it will be share and share alike for every municipality within the library service scheme; without affecting the ownership of the property in that period. In essence the City is offering directorships to these areas on its library management.

Manners and Motoring

Safe driving isn't so terribly hard.

Most accidents can be traced to the same source-lack of consideration for others.

The trouble is that many ear drivers have no manners whatever and coupled with this they have the mistaken impression that the only car in the world is the onge they happen to be driving.

There's nothing wrong with driving today that a little thoughtfulness wouldn't cure.

Which Direction?

As human beings, various candidates have ferences of attitude toward life and civic affairs. New candidates in the field naturally public works, recreation, encouragement of industry and tourism, solution of parking problems and so on.

There are people in Courtenay who feel the city has gone just about as far as it should go; there are others who think city administration hasn't been aggressive enough. Which way do you want it? Which way do the various candidates want it? the various candidates want it

COURTENAY ARGUS Acclamation or Default?

The term "acclamation" is used almost niversally to indicate that candidates are elected without a contest. An alternative ex pression, and one more accurately descriptive, may be election by default. It can only be truthfully termed acclamation if the candidates are genuinely hailed as above criticism and are returned by an enthusiastic gesture representing unanimous support of their policies. If, however, the real result is that the ratepayers are apathetic and cannot bestir sounding term in place of a more accurate and harsh expression.

Intelligent Voting

Those who urge ratepayers to "get out and vote" in every election are doing a good job. The privilage of voting is a valuable part of our democratic way of life and those who cast their ballots at every election indi-cate clearly that they appreciate the privilege. Some thought should ge given by every elector, however, to the candidates and their

Pilot Training on Time-Payment By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Corre

ONE of the indirect results of the

Air Force has been reduced and fur-ther cuts are on the way. The prob-lem of the airlines is where the raw material for civil pilots is to come from. For years before and after the war civilian pilots have been re cruited from the short service m of the RAF. The supply is drying up and technologically there is little prospect of a pilotless commercial aircraft within the foreseeable future.

To overcome the difficulty a strange alliance has been announced between Brilish Overseas Airways, British European Airways and some of the larger private airline op-erators and one of Britain's biggest hire-purchase firms. The plan is quite simple. The time-payment firm will advance the money to enable young men to be Irained in piloting civilian aircraft. They will repay from earnings, with a contribution from the Even so, any young man wanting to become an airline pilot will have to find a $900 deposit to open the transaction. Against that it is pointed out that he will be proficient and capable of earning approximately $3,000 a year at the age of 19 as a junior cepllot, with the possibility of a $10,000-a-year senior pilot's job by the time he is 23 and a captain's job at between $12,000 and $15,000 a year at the age of 25.

The young man with the $900 de-posit will first undertake initial train-ing, the cost of which will be met by the deposit on the whole plan. If he proves to be a competent pilot he then gets the backing of an airline then gets the backing of an airline which will accept him as embryo pilot. That done, he embarks on the commercial training which will cost approximately $7,500.

The airline underwrites $4,220.

The affiline underwrites $4,750 of shis cost and embryo pilot contracts to pay the remaining $3,000 plus interest on the time-payment luttion. Once qualified he will take up his $3,000-a-year job, out of which he will have to pay approximately $1,200 a year to the hire-purchase company for the first three years of his em-ployment. In addition to these pay-ments the pupil will also have to find insurance premiums for the principal and interest involved during his period of training. Once on the air-line staff he is covered by airline insurance.

The underlying idea of the plan was to provide an opportunity for young men of the required medical standard and general aptitude to of means. It has not quite worked out that way and the airlines are already being criticized for participating in a scheme which will bene fit a private finance house very nearly as much as the airlines. The fact that possibly $500 will have to be found by the pupil to cover prim ary training fees and insurance premiums rather nullifies the idea of assisting pupils without means.

The only comment on this point is hat it may be possible for educational authorities to make a grant to cover this amount in the same way as they assist other students to enter skilled trades and professions by pay-ing fees and sustenance, but nothing official is forthcoming on this point.

The main argument against the air-lines is that they should accept their responsibilities in the same way as other transport operators. The railways have to train their own loco-motive engineers, and road operators train their own drivers. The training process is regarded as a normal capltal expense of these companies. Steamship companies train officers and engineers through a system of rigorous apprenticeship. In all these cases the cost of training is reflected in the comparatively low salaries of junior officers, which are accepted because of the recognition of training

If airlines paid their junior co-pilots $2,000 a year at 19 they would be able to meet the cost of training and still pay a salary considerably in excess of the average at so young an age. Under the present scheme many young men without adequate means will be deterred by the thought of having to borrow the initial deposit and the fear of a nebulous burden of debt should they Iail the course. The airlines hope that it will attract sufficient to meet their needs.

The Iron Heel

Reference the report "Anti-Ftuoridation Misleading the Public," it seems to this observer that the principle involved in fluoridation has a simplicity about it that would not confuse even Mortimer Snerd.

Because the Queen of England takes sugar in her tea, or Dictator Khrushchev takes his yodka neat, it does not follow that everybody in their respective realins are bound to do the same. The principle of fluoridation is no whit different. For iseth there are methods and preparations available to accommodate any occasion, and there should be no quarrel whatever about it.

But—if an entire public water supply is fluoridated, that is the iron heel of compulsion—an autocratic decree that forces everybody, without exception, to use it whether they want to or not. Thus our national constitution is violated—that safeguard which guarantees every citizen's right of choice as to what we shall consume, what religion we shall practice, if any, what kind of industry we may engage in. practice, if any, what kind of industry we may engage in,

2875 Delatre Street, Victoria, B.C. M. CADWALLADER.

Council Sincerity

It is gratifying to note at the last meeting of the Saanich council the obvious sincerity of the councillors in attendance. Whether or not amalgamation of Saanich and the City of Victoria will be shown by a royal commission to be in the best interests of Saanich ratepayers is very much in doubt, but it took a great deal of courage on the part of Councillor Passmore to sacrifice his very strong personal convictions against amalgamation for the sake of getting this matter dealt with once and for all. He had a tough choice to make, knowing he was helping to commit the municipality to an expense which he felt was unjustified.

Likewise Mr. Diespecker, candidate for reeve, had the courage to vote "no" in the face of a majority of the rest of the council, feeling that he sould not commit the ratepayers to what, through his own personal investigation of past reports on this amalgamation issue, he considered a wasteful expense.

5168 Santa Clara Avenue, Victoria, B.C. D. CAREY.

Business Sense

Councillor Diesecker, candidate for the reeveship in Sasnich, as reported states, "Merge and lose your assets." I do not profess to be the smartest businessman in the world. However, ordinary common sense tells me that in any business including municipal affairs, we have liabilities and assets. In any business merger or municipal unification or amalgamation a plan must be worked out and the assets and liabilities are taken care of in the process. It follows of course, that any plan must be mutually satisfactory to both sides. This is just plain, common, ordinary business sense. Anyone with any basic knowledge of business should know that.

If Councillor Diespecker cannot offer any better argu ment than he has, he would do well to brush up on busing methods before venturing "where angels fear to tread."

Getting Things Done

I attended the opening of the new Point Ellice Bridge, and by official invitation from city hall through the mail. It seems the committee were under the impression I was an old-timer here. This is, in the strictest sense, not so. I had sent in names of old-time residents here who did have a loved one perish in the disaster of 1896. I can only presume that the committee gathered from my knowledge of the case that I also was an old-timer.

However, I do not think anyone was more pleased at seeing the new bridge than myself—and to know that now, at long last there was a fine new and safe structure that will last for many long years. Ever since I started travelling to work in Esquimali by the old street cars I felt that here was great danger—and that a recutrence of the disaster of 1896 could easily take place. With the weight of those heavy street cars the bridge really did shake, and even when the street cars were off and buses running there was still a great deal of vibration. I wrote to the papers urging prompt action, also vibration. I wrote to the papers urging prompt action, also to the major.

However, no one could seem to get up enough interest or enthusiasm to make a definite move. Then in 1953, things began to happen. Enough controversy was started to assure that we would get a new bridge. Mayor Scurrah used his tofluence and good judgment and today we have a bridge of which we can be justly proud.

But that's not all; we also have enough money to build a new fire hall and no increase in taxes, and I do believe that with Mr. Scurrah being returned we will see many more improvements in our city in the next few years. Let us, one and all, support our mayor and council so that they will be enabled to carry out these needed improvements.

And I must admit I was wrong when I said they were both lousy. Neither one is good neough to be considered just plain, ordinary lousy.

They are masters of the flat note, the flow groan and the small snort. They are unexcelled in the art of breathing heavily, and recognize no peer at hiccoughing in the middle of a word.

But singers? Never. The dictiohary definition of sing is "to make melodious, not odious, not odious.

I'm beginning to think we have a quiet rebellion on our hands, and this catastrophic Safe Driving Week is part of it. Not that anybody is dashing around looking for trouble, or stubbornly defying traffic laws, or being deliberately careless. But, maybe, quite unconsciously, a lot of people are beginning to feel they we heard enough official urging to drive carefully, and walk carefully, and walk carefully, and walk carefully, and be polite to all to others on the road.

Maybe the people doing this haven't been involved in any accidents. A driver can cause a crash without being in it at all. Maybe the public's mood is wrong. A lot of drivers aren't dimming their lights, even in lown, these nights. That's surely a sign of something.

Pedestrians are getting worse, so that it's a real operation to get around a corner downtown. They're starting to mess up the scramble system at Yares and Douglas with their straggling.

Whatever the exact figure, you will have earned a sizeable fortune.

Have you ever stopped to figure out just how much you can save for your family or your retirement years?

By its very nature, life insurance can help you to preserve a part of that fortune. For, with the pay ment of one premium, life insurance automatically creates an immediate estate to guarantee income to your family in the event of your death. At the same time, life insurance can be building a fund to provide you with a lifetime income for your retirement years if you survive.

Your Sun Life agent will be glad to discuss this important point with you and explain in greater detail how part of your own personal fortune can be preserved through life insurance.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

ONCE COTE was STOCKING

ON OF THE WAYS that we honor out-tanding men, both past and present is to name something after them. On Vancouver Island alone there must be hundreds of roads, ranging all the way from such important arterns is Denglas and Blaushard Streets down to quiet, rural lanes which have been named after the men and women who pronected this area or contributed to its early growth. In the same manner colles and provinces, Victoria, Vanconver, Alberta, Prince Edward Island, even countries such as

Rho besia and Colombia, have taken their names from famous or unpor at people of the past,

Of course, fate sometimes plans an ironic trick, allowing a name to become a household word while the andividual who be stowed it is almost forgoffen. Take the case of the wealthy English nobleman whose passion for gambling was orgreat that rather than desert the eard for the dining table, he would have his servants bring him pieces of meat placed between slices of bread, which he could munch as he played

The STORY of the BELLS

W/HEN I WAS A WEE LAD in school a dumpy little professor sme in Friday afternoons to feach us singing by the somewhat old tashioned in thod of de re me. One of the first ditties he managed to instil into our roving minds and voices was

Oh hear the merry Christ Church bells,

One two three tour, tive six, seven,

and its iss I recall with inward phosure the bells of a cathedral near my shildhood home, which in the stillness of a Sabbath morning peaked forth their sad sweet melodies. Bells are and always have been a part of the aire and charm peculiar to the Lord's Day. They waken us for church in the morning, ring the hour of the Angelus at moon, and the call to vespers at eventide. How bells add to the peace and promise of Christmas' What a chill funeral bells cast over the heart. How happy the jungling of sleigh bells spilling magn in the wike of a big winters from What a hiding I got as a child for ringing meighbors'
